Creative writing - Topic No 2

There is a common misconception that having a part-time job as a high school student has only adverse consequences. However, I am inclined to believe that combining employment with studies can be beneficial in several ways.

First of all, a job is invaluable in terms of teaching employees the meaning of independence. High school students who take up a part-time job learn to fend for themselves and complete tasks without the guidance of teachers they are so accustomed to. This skill, without doubt, will prove useful ^{sense} once they graduate and embark on the journey to adulthood. 92

^{Drum up word?} Having a part-time job as a student also enriches your skill set, provides you with new qualifications, which will make you more desirable an applicant in the eyes of other employers.

Besides that, it is not uncommon for students to have only a vague idea of the kind of ^{career} ~~profession~~ they would like to pursue in the future. For those who are in ^{two} minds about what ~~career~~ profession to choose, part-time jobs are perfect. Taking up various jobs throughout their high school years allows students to explore the employment market and might help them settle on ~~the~~ job that best suits their preferences.

Some might argue that combining work with studies is only detrimental to both, and that it is prudent to focus on one of them at a time to achieve better results. This statement, however, only has merit under certain circumstances: if a student is idle or lacks ~~enough~~ encouragement and support. 196 In this case, one would obviously find it a challenge to keep up with both studies and work. But if a student is diligent in their studies and industrious at work, great ~~high~~ height ~~are~~ bound to be achieved.

CHOOSING YOUR FUTURE PATH

It goes without saying that deciding on a college major is one of the major milestones in every child's life. However, many adolescents find it hard to make a choice. They are advised to seek guidance from their parents. Nevertheless, I believe that it's not always the best decision to rely on your closest relatives when choosing your future path. To support my point of view, I'm going to provide a couple of arguments.

To begin with, it's highly important to mention that every child should be genuinely interested in their chosen college major. Otherwise, they are likely to experience emotional and psychological pressure that may result in their dropping out of college. To prevent this, many universities, for example Harvard and Yale, ask their applicants to provide special letters listing their reasons for choosing a certain faculty.

Nonetheless, some people insist that parental guidance is essential when it comes to choosing a college major. I must admit that their stance on the issue deserves to be taken into account. Indeed, some teenagers ~~may~~ would never have made a final decision if it hadn't been for ~~their parents~~ parental support and guidance. Moreover, ~~that's why~~ ~~one shouldn't~~ forget that our parents also had to ~~make~~ choose their future career at one point in time. Therefore, they always have their best intentions at heart and ~~want~~ their children shouldn't forget that. ~~All~~ In all, it's evident that children should always consider their own interests, preferences and predilections when choosing a college major. However, it's important not to forget about our parents who are always there to guide us.

DECIDING ON A COLLEGE MAJOR ¹⁺⁵

Deciding on a college major is a problem faced by a lot of children nowadays as the demand for specialists with Bachelor's Degrees increases each year. Some people know what their dream job is since infancy ^{and} ~~and therefore~~ have no issues choosing their major. However, not everyone is so ~~but~~ lucky. In such cases, it is advisable for children to seek guidance from parents. I think it is a good recommendation. ⁽⁶⁹⁾

Firstly, the saying "mother knows best" is sometimes true. Parents indeed can be better at analyzing their children's strengths and weaknesses than the children themselves. For instance, one might think ^{he or she} ~~they~~ would make a good teacher, but their parents know that ~~their he or she~~ grows angry easily, ^{so} majoring in teaching might be a bad idea. ⁽²¹⁾

Secondly, parents have more experience ~~in life~~, so they can critically assess majors and jobs that would be available after studying. Sometimes, the major can be quite interesting, but ~~the job opportunities it offers are very few~~ but offer very few job opportunities ^{help greatly} when deciding. ⁽¹⁵⁹⁾

Even though parents can be of ~~tremendous~~ ^{help greatly} help when deciding on a college major, it is important to think their ~~advice~~ pieces of advice through and not just blindly follow them. Parents are also people, they do not ~~po~~ have access to universal knowledge and they pursue their own goals and interests. ⁽²¹²⁾

For example, there might be a tradition in one's family that ~~at least one~~ children should become ~~a~~ doctors since their grand grandfather, ~~for~~ grandfather and father were doctors. ⁽²⁴⁰⁾

However, this person hates biology and is afraid of blood. No matter how insistent their family insists, this person should not major in medicine because they will end up hating their job. ⁽²⁴⁰⁾ ~~(267)~~ ⁽²⁶³⁾

In conclusion, parents' guidance can be a valuable tool ²⁸⁰
~~during~~ ~~also~~ when you choose your college major. However, you should also listen ²⁹⁰ to yourself because this choice will affect your life, ³⁰⁰ not your ³⁰² parents! ⁽²⁹⁹⁾

Elizabeth was brooding in her room. She had sought asylum there since spurious gossip about her began circulating at Seagrove Academy last week. Not that Elizabeth had ever been considered a social butterfly. She preferred to live vicariously through the stories of her more brazen friends: late night partying, fraternizing with boys, childish pranks. Still, she had taken to being more by herself than usual since the allegations surfaced.

She was up for consideration for the highly coveted Blauvelt Award, a scholarship recognizing “academic integrity and promise.” A student had given headmaster Billings an anonymous “tip” that Elizabeth had cheated on several tests this year. The accusations were laughable. Elizabeth had long been a stellar student at Seagrove. She lacked a natural intelligence – this was true. However, she compensated for this deficit through diligence and perseverance; she was very thorough in her studies and exhibited an almost relentless determination. Still, the accusations had given the recommendation committee pause. On Friday Elizabeth had been called to Mr. Billings’ grand office, where she was asked copious questions about her recent exams. The experience was quite traumatic.

Seagrove was an elite school. Most of its students came from privileged backgrounds. This was not the case for Elizabeth. Her family had little money. She attended Seagrove on a full scholarship. The Blauvelt Award would help her family pay for college. So, it was with the same diligence which she applied to her studies that Elizabeth planned to unmask her accuser. She opened the school directory on her bed and began combing through the names. Seagrove was such a small and insular community. Twenty-one kids would be in her graduating class. Elizabeth knew it was inevitable that the person spreading rumors about her would come to light. It was just a matter of time.

4. Why is Elizabeth so sure that she will learn who has accused her of cheating?

- A. Her friends will help her.
- ☒ B. The community is so small.
- C. She thinks the person will come forward.
- D. She thinks the person will be the recipient of the Blauvelt Award.

Deciding on a major is a huge and important step for any teenager. Adolescent years ~~is~~ are the one of the most vulnerable times in our lives, during which people constantly doubt themselves and the correctness of their decisions. Due to this ~~is~~ reason, arises the question: should children seek advice from their parents when deciding on a college major? It is my firm belief that they should seek parental advice on the matter for a number of reasons.

First of all, parents tend to have much more life experience. They have gone through the same process of ~~finding~~ ^{themselves} understanding ~~and~~ finding their place in the world. Additionally, in most cases parents know their child better than anyone else, so they can help them identify their strengths and set them on the right path.

Second of all, parents can offer a new perspective. When people approach problems in life they often have a very limited view of it, which results in missing opportunities and copious regrets. And it is the mission of a parent to broaden their child's horizons and make them look at a problem from a different angle.

In contrast, there are people who believe that sometimes parents project their own unsatisfied desires onto their children and so fulfill their dreams ~~the~~ through the lives of their progeny. While it is true ~~for~~ in some cases, it is more of an exception. If there is a proper line of communication established between a child and a parent, there should be no such problem.

In conclusion, I would like to say that deciding on a major is never easy, especially in our teen age years when everything around you seems so uncertain and overwhelming. But ~~there are~~ ~~many people out who~~ ~~love~~ the love and support of ~~our~~ ^{the} parents can help teenagers arrive at the right decision. ~~and~~

Choosing a college major has always been a challenge for teenagers. It is the first life-altering decision that they get to make. It is a heavy burden, as anxiety and doubts about one's future start creeping in, any child will feel pressured and alone. So should they seek support from their parents, or should it be a completely independent decision?

My position on this problem is simple: I believe that a child should get their parents' input on the matter, but ultimately the decision must be made by the kid. Parents know their offspring better than anyone else, as they have watched them grow up and develop, so they know a lot about the kid's abilities and interests. However, parents can be biased. Sometimes they may try pressuring the child into a degree that will "make them proud", disregarding their child's wishes. Parents shouldn't be living through their kid, as it's a separate human being that has their own dreams and aspirations.

It is also important to note, that kids don't have much life experience and are prone to impulsive decision making. Swept away by trends or a minute-passion they may choose a major they'll grow to regret. Sometimes parents have to be the rational voice of reason. They need to explain to their child the advantages and disadvantages of certain degrees, while staying impartial to avoid pushing their kid into something they have no interest for. There is a chance that the child will be stuck doing something they hate for the rest of their life, which can cause them to resent their parents.

To sum it up, I would strongly recommend ~~the child~~ to take one's parents' advice into consideration, but they should make their own choice. Hearing out different opinions can help a lot and bring clarity, but it's crucial not to lose yourself in them.

Nowadays computer technologies have become an inevitable part of a life of an individual. The question of online studying ^{is being} ~~has been~~ widely discussed in the social media. Opinions concerning this topic do differ ^{unpleasant?} and no research has proved yet that remote learning via modern technologies is as efficient as traditional studying. In my point of view, online studying cannot be compared to the in-person one due to the number of reasons. 70

First of all, the main disadvantage of learning through technologies is the weak system of students' control. It is almost impossible to exclude cheating on the tests due to the limited opportunities of a computer screen. Moreover, ^{it's} ~~it~~ is difficult to control the attendance and to make a remote being engaged in the process of studying, as some students need some additional encouragement that is easier to receive during in-person learning. Here lies the second reason. 74

There is no doubt that some teenagers need ~~certain~~ special atmosphere to maintain focus on the tasks given and increase their personal score (grades). ~~There is no~~ They do not experience any difficulties with this in traditional schools, as they see their peers studying, therefore, are being encouraged to study as well. Achieving such atmosphere ~~during~~ in online studying situation is extremely difficult. 58

Thirdly, it would be unforgivable to forget about possible medical consequences ^{sp} of online studying. Back and neck pains, ruining of eyesight, migraines are medical conditions caused by excessive computer use, which is an inevitable part of learning through modern technologies. There is no need to explain that traditional learning avoids such ~~draw~~ drawback almost entirely. →

Nowadays, more and more adolescents decide to begin working part-time in order to earn money for ~~diff~~ various needs on their own. I suppose it is a rather sensible decision, so I mostly agree that teenagers can benefit from having part-time jobs.

One reason in support of the importance of having a part-time job is an ability to boost our soft skills, including creativity, time-management, meeting deadlines and interacting with people. All of them are essential in order to become more mature and self-disciplined, so taking up a part-time job is a great idea which can benefit you a lot.

Another advantage of taking up a part-time job is that teenagers can learn how to manage their own money. Financial literacy, which sometimes results in a dilemma whether to spend all your earnings or to put them aside, is vital in adulthood when running your own household. That makes part-time working such a beneficial pastime.

Last, but not least, working part-time while attending high school is also a great way of selecting a future career. Working experience can make you determined in a certain career path and set a handful of goals and objectives to accomplish. So it is pro-orientation prospects which also make working part-time so beneficial.

On the contrary, one downside of taking up a part-time job is a possible downside in academical success. Sometimes it is really tough to combine studying with working which may result in abandoning ~~either~~ one, and the best way to lessen the distraction from schooling is to work at the weekends only, for instance.

All in all, I still agree with the idea that having part-time jobs can benefit high school students. Although it might seem challenging at a first glance, the ~~experience~~ working experience is still seems extremely rewarding and fruitful for me.

Part-time jobs have become an integral part of many students' life. There are heated discussions whether such an occupation is a blessing or a curse for adolescents' well-being. In my opinion, it is ~~certainly~~ a highly valuable experience for every teenager ~~(which)~~, which should not be omitted.

Firstly, the responsibility that comes hand in hand with ~~even~~ a job is beneficial for personal growth. Not only do ~~that~~ young people learn how to perform the assigned duties, but they also understand the value of money and, therefore, start spending their finances more mindfully. Some may argue, that part-time positions' wages are too low, but in reality they are quite enough to cater to teenager's needs, ~~even~~ considering that living expenses are still covered by their parents.

On top of that, contrary to the popular opinion that part-time jobs take too much time and consequently worsen student's academic performance, it has been proved that working students have better time-management skills. They ^{so} allow adolescents to learn how to study more effectively, and ~~these~~ ^{skills} will generally come in handy in the future.

Lastly, it is the teenagers that worked part time in the past that find their ~~strongest~~ dream job in the future, thanks to the vast experience and trials that these people faced while working in young age.

To conclude, part-time working is a thing that should ~~happened~~ be tried by every ^{underage} person. It allows to take a peek into adult life, ~~the~~ gather both new knowledge and friends, and learn how to juggle several occupations simultaneously. Pros in this particular case significantly prevail ^{over} the cons, to say the least.

There is a commonly held belief that remote learning through technologies like Zoom can be equally effective compared to traditional in-person classroom learning. Frankly speaking, I am a staunch supporter of in-person learning, therefore, I disagree with the aforementioned statement.

~~First and foremost,~~ ^T there is a tangible lack of interaction when it comes to online learning. In comparison with the traditional system of education, Zoom and other technologies are incapable of recreating a ~~face-to-face~~ face-to-face conversation due to various reasons. One of them is reluctance to switch on cameras and microphones: teachers literally talk to themselves since they ~~do~~ do not receive any responses or feedback. Such a lack of communication brings back the memories of Coronavirus. Personally, I vividly remember that I was the only person who did not turn anything off despite feeling humble. Hence, teachers paid attention exclusively to me, ~~turning~~ ¹⁵⁰ Nothing has changed since then: virtually all students tend to find lame excuses for having their cameras and microphones off in order to engage themselves in other matters including scrolling reels on Instagram, commenting on ~~videos~~ ^{"important"} videos ~~etc.~~ etc. Consequently, this ~~kind of~~ so-called "freedom" leads to negligence. While being in a classroom, teachers can ~~simply~~ take one's phone away for a lesson, whereas it is not feasible while learning through technologies. Apparently, this is one of the most compelling reasons why online education is not effective ~~many~~ ^{because} students find a place to hide their phones. Thus, one gets distracted. Students do not acquire knowledge ^{so} they eventually end up cheating during tests and exams. For ~~one~~ ^{instance}, almost everyone resorted to phones during the atrocious pandemic while I relied on my knowledge. Their "Judgement Day" came when they were back to school.

In conclusion, I believe nothing can surpass ~~the~~ in-person education. Not only does it provide people with necessary skills but it also ~~helps~~ ^{enables} one to immerse into society.

In contemporary society college education is becoming more and more available to large numbers of people. This shift inevitably raises a plethora of various questions, such as whether children should ask their parents to assist them in choosing their college major or not. In my view, parental guidance is essential for making the right decision.

To begin with, it is undeniable that ~~older~~ older people tend to be much more experienced than the youth, ~~he~~ hence they can likely provide their children ~~with~~ with splendid advice. For example, they can point out mistakes their children might be making ~~and~~ and warn them about difficulties they might face in advance. Furthermore, they can give their opinion ~~on~~ about subjects their child excels at. Last but not least, the parents can validate their child's feelings and provide emotional support.

However, not everyone considers this stance ~~to be~~ reasonable. The advocates of the notion that children should choose their college major on their own argue that parental interference might be detrimental to the process, as some parents ignore their child's opinion and feelings and not every parent has even attended a college. To add to that, they think ~~it~~ that not every parent is an experienced and mature person, individual.

Personally, I agree to an extent and find these arguments compelling, but I do not think they are completely right. Firstly, not every parent is impartial to what their child thinks and feels, so children should still at least attempt to ask for help. Secondly, while the argument is true, the child can also consult other sources if their parent is not of much help.

In conclusion, choosing a college major is a serious issue for children ~~now~~ nowadays. While there are different opinions, parental guidance is nonetheless important for ~~the~~ the process.

In modern day and age, young generation seems to be more involved in finding a part-time job ^{than} ~~that~~ it has ever been. Combining work and studies is an extremely attractive way ^{for students} of both getting an education and providing themselves with money for their own needs. However, for many it is not the case. In my opinion, high school students can only benefit from having part-time jobs while attending classes.

In the first place, ^{hex} having a part-time job as a schooler provides ^{youngsters} you with a necessary experience for their future career ladder. Even after finishing a master's degree, it sometimes can be tough to find a job in any walk of life without the essential experience. Therefore, such an issue can be solved by working part-time while in high school to prevent any further difficulties.

Furthermore, not only do you make new acquaintances and friends at work, but find helpful people that are likely to ^{hex} serve you a good favour in future. Connections and relations with either wealthy and mighty, or intelligent people have always played a crucial role in everybody's lives, making it easier to find some perspective job in the future and earn good money.

Nevertheless, some people claim that working part-time is useless and harmful for the school performance of high school students. They argue that part-time jobs ~~are~~ ^{hex} highly distract adolescents from their studies. However, they fail to consider that working is a sort of a study itself, helping youngsters in perfecting their skills and consuming practical knowledge.

When all is said and done, I strongly believe that part-time jobs are a major benefit for high school students and play a paramount role in socialising and find hex a sphere in which they are all power.

Deciding on a college major is hard because it impacts one's future life. That's why some people advise students to seek guidance from their parents. I believe that it is a correct thing to do.

One of the reasons why young people find it difficult to choose a college major is their lack of experience in higher education. Parents, obviously, don't suffer from such an issue because they've already completed that chapter of their lives. A seasoned veteran's help will surely be useful to a rookie.

Another argument that can be made in support of my position is that parents usually have a wider range of connections. They know more people who have made a different path of life, so it's easy to evaluate who regrets their choice and why.

My third argument comes from differences in behaviour and thinking. Youngsters are generally considered to be more hot-headed and impulsive than older people. But deciding on a college major requires a clear head so parents' advice is important here.

However, not everyone agrees with my position. Some people argue that parents' traditional way of thinking may sway their children into making a ~~wrong~~ wrong choice. But I believe that this point of view is not entirely correct because young people of such age have enough independence to think for themselves and consider parents' words as advice rather than an order.

So, should children seek guidance from their parents when deciding on a college major? My answer is "yes, they should" because there are simply too many benefits with very little drawbacks.

Remote learning has never been so relevant and needed as nowadays. Humankind^{sp} struggles with wars, deadly infections (for example Coronavirus) and a lot of other unpleasant situations. And earlier, children had to suspend their studies when it was forbidden or unsafe to go outside to a public place, but modern technologies (like above-mentioned Zoom) seem to suggest a solution to the ~~the~~ problem. Although some people argue about the effectiveness of using such technologies. Let's^{sp} dive into their and their opponents' arguments. 69

On the one hand, remote education provides much more opportunities for students to cheat, because a teacher can't physically control them and their environment. ~~That's~~^{sp} why ^{many} people ~~don't~~ do not actually trust on-line exams. Some other people ~~can hardly believe that it's possible~~ mention that children need social interaction, which is drastically reduced in remote learning due to obvious reasons, and should be taught by a ^{teacher} not only ~~the~~ the subject, but also some general norms of politeness, friendship, respect. 20

On the other hand, there's a solid opinion that on-line studying in fact has a lot of benefits that traditional education cannot provide. For instance, ~~that~~ it is much easier and more efficient to write essays using a digital device instead of paper, that is also better for ecology, because paper is made of trees that produce oxygen and consume CO₂. ~~That's~~ Specialists also mention that studying on-line at home saves much time of going to school (or another educational place).

In conclusion, I would like to say that I agree with the statement and would support remote education. After all, modern problems require modern solutions! 98

With the development of digital technologies, the idea that online education through Zoom-like platforms can be as good as having old-fashioned offline classes is ubiquitous among people. However, I believe that the situation is more complicated than that, therefore, I can only partially agree with this trend. logic

Firstly, it has to be mentioned that the Internet-based services facilitate a lot of people who have no other access to education, making it even more effective than ordinary lessons. For instance, a remote village in Africa has no funding to afford to hire foreign professionals. Consequently, young villagers are left with no ¹⁰⁰ classes, while the digital platforms could provide them with the coveted education for a cheaper price. So, in this case, online learning definitely beats the traditional school.

Yet, when having the opportunity to visit real classes, students should ~~definitely~~ certainly aim for them, since there they would grasp ¹⁵⁰ material more quickly. For example, when a student sees the teacher ~~in~~ in person, the latter one can explain everything and show real-life examples, engaging the whole class, so that everything is understood. If they were having a meeting in zoom, students would be distracted and they would have to go through ²⁰⁰ material again to really get it. So, in this case, offline learning is a more efficient way of studying.

In conclusion, it has to be ~~sure~~ highlighted that there is no denying that the novelties in education are for the best, yet their ²⁵⁰ appearance does not mean that the traditional ways are not effective. So, even though I do agree ~~with~~ that in some cases digital platforms provide an ^{equal} alternative for schools, I still presume that offline learning is more effective.

READING (15 points)

Task 1. (1-5) Read the text and choose the correct option.

Transfer your answers onto the answer sheet.

Elizabeth was brooding in her room. She had sought asylum there since spurious gossip about her began circulating at Seagrove Academy last week. Not that Elizabeth had ever been considered a social butterfly. She preferred to live vicariously through the stories of her more brazen friends: late night partying, fraternizing with boys, childish pranks. Still, she had taken to being more by herself than usual since the allegations surfaced.

She was up for consideration for the highly coveted Blauvelt Award, a scholarship recognizing “academic integrity and promise.” A student had given headmaster Billings an anonymous “tip” that Elizabeth had cheated on several tests this year. The accusations were laughable. Elizabeth had long been a stellar student at Seagrove. She lacked a natural intelligence – this was true. However, she compensated for this deficit through diligence and perseverance; she was very thorough in her studies and exhibited an almost relentless determination. Still, the accusations had given the recommendation committee pause. On Friday Elizabeth had been called to Mr. Billings’ grand office, where she was asked copious questions about her recent exams. The experience was quite traumatic.

Seagrove was an elite school. Most of its students came from privileged backgrounds. This was not the case for Elizabeth. Her family had little money. She attended Seagrove on a full scholarship. The Blauvelt Award would help her family pay for college. So, it was with the same diligence which she applied to her studies that Elizabeth planned to unmask her accuser. She opened the school directory on her bed and began combing through the names. Seagrove was such a small and insular community. Twenty-one kids would be in her graduating class. Elizabeth knew it was inevitable that the person spreading rumors about her would come to light. It was just a matter of time.

Topic 2

In XIX and early XX centuries, rights of working class became the main topic of various discussions. With the rise of industrial era, people who were involved into manufacturing process became the most important parts of society. The constantly growing number of workers ~~made~~ turned them into a serious threat to political structures, so, to please them and reduce ^{the} chances of rebellions, ~~governments~~ governments around the world, especially in Europe, finally turned the needed rights into the law. Among these rights, there was one that created a workweek standard of 40 hours per week. However, now this standard needs reconsideration, according to a popular opinion.

The main argument for changing this standard is that 40 hours ~~is~~ a week, which is 8 hours a day, is still a ~~to~~ lot, and a 30-hour workweek would help the workers ~~to be~~ more effective. Some Japanese companies did a ~~research~~ research on this topic a few years ago. ~~They entered a new~~ They changed their workers' ~~workweek to only 4 days a week and compared their productivity to their usual one. It appeared that reducing the amount of working hours made the employees more happy and dedicated to their work, which, obviously, enhanced their effectiveness. This research to later was repeated by a British company and showed the same result, which proved the ~~benefit~~ existence of 30-hour workweek benefits.~~

To sum up, lowering the amount of hours spent at work is beneficial for both productivity and happiness of employees, making it a logical decision, which should be made by as many companies as possible.

To sum up, lowering the amount of hours spent at work is beneficial for both productivity and happiness of employees, making it a logical decision, which should be made by as many companies as possible. ~~It is a logical decision, which should be made by as many companies as possible.~~

High school students can benefit from having part-time jobs while attending classes

Nowadays a lot of people ponder ^{sp} whether having part-time jobs is beneficial for high school students or not. Personally, I think that each of these options can be argued. Moreover, a significant part of this problem depends on a certain student and their purposes and abilities.

To begin with, I believe it is important to mention that high school students have a need for independence. It is important for them to separate from their parents and be their own man. From this point of view, part-time jobs provide teenagers with pocket money and that satisfies this need. However, some people may think that high schoolers should not worry about money. Instead they should pay undivided attention to their studies and enjoy the last moments of careless youth. ~~121~~ careless ???

There is another popular opinion, according to which having a part-time job while being at high school is an excellent way to get some practical skills and, what is more important, a better understanding of a desired education and career. Despite the strength of provided argumentation, opponents think of part-time jobs as a distraction from teenagers' main activity - studying at school. Working and studying at the same time, high school students lack free time. It can be a serious problem, considering the fact that they have to prepare for exams in order to enter a good university and get higher education.

To conclude, it is normal ~~not~~ not to be able to define your position in the discussed subject. I suggest you to listen to your heart and do what you think is best for you. 120

→ It comes as no surprise that in the age of rapid advancements in computing technologies make their way into the educational sphere as well. Remote learning is on the rise. However, the benefit of such technologies and the extent to which they should be used is questionable. This is why I would like to discuss the advantages and disadvantages of remote learning and compare it to the traditional methods.

On ^{sp} one hand, remote learning is, undoubtedly, much more convenient for multiple reasons. Firstly, the students ^{sp} don't need to waste time commuting between their home and work place. Secondly, there are fewer distractions in the online lessons: anyone who doesn't ^{sp} follow rules and is not disciplined can be easily muted or kicked out of the conference altogether.

On the other hand, however, there are clear disadvantages as well. It may be extremely hard to keep track of all students for the teachers in online lessons. Many pupils prefer to have their camera disabled and because of that there is no feedback from them; we can't ^{sp} evaluate whether the material for the students is clear or not. 182

Personally, my opinion on this subject is that we should seek balance between the two options. Remote learning is most effective in the times of world crises such as the global pandemics. But other than that traditional methods should be used. Not only ^{sp} do they allow to concentrate better on the lessons but ~~also~~ they also help students socialize, which is of utmost importance for the development of a human being.

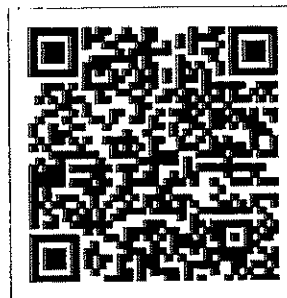

In conclusion, I would like to highlight that it is in ^{sp} schools and universities ~~where~~ ^{that} we learn the most important skills and develop our characters by making friends. No matter where you stand on this question such key aspect of traditional schooling should not be underestimated. 13 16

Logic

I do not quite agree with the given statement. Of course, parents' approval is very valuable for every teenager in search of future profession, but it surely shouldn't be the main point of making such an important decision.

Studying in college takes up a long time in human life, and it is directly linked to one's future. And if, one day, a student realises that their major is not what they want their life to be about, the time might be already wasted. I think that one should be free to choose their future profession by themselves, but, unfortunately, many parents disagree. They think that a teenager is unable to make such an important decision by themselves, so they take the matter in their own hands and choose for them. Usually they pick medicine or IT-professions that are the most well-paid. However, their choice often doesn't correspond with their child's wishes, which leads to apathy and them being lost in life later on.

But that being said, I'm not saying that a teenager should not seek advice from their parents at all. After all, no one understands us better than they do, not even we ourselves. As example, if you are feeling torn between two majors that you both like, you can always ask your parents to help you decide which is the one you should really go for.

To sum up, I want to say that while parents have more life experience than their children do, it doesn't mean they should decide for a teenager how they should live their life. Children may want some guidance in this difficult choice, but, in my opinion, the best advice a parent can give in this situation is "Follow your heart".

READING (15 points)

Task 1. (1-5) Read the text and choose the correct option.

Transfer your answers onto the answer sheet.

Elizabeth was brooding in her room. She had sought asylum there since spurious gossip about her began circulating at Seagrove Academy last week. Not that Elizabeth had ever been considered a social butterfly. She preferred to live vicariously through the stories of her more brazen friends: late night partying, fraternizing with boys, childish pranks. Still, she had taken to being more by herself than usual since the allegations surfaced.

She was up for consideration for the highly coveted Blauvelt Award, a scholarship recognizing “academic integrity and promise.” A student had given headmaster Billings an anonymous “tip” that Elizabeth had cheated on several tests this year. The accusations were laughable. Elizabeth had long been a stellar student at Seagrove. She lacked a natural intelligence – this was true. However, she compensated for this deficit through diligence and perseverance; she was very thorough in her studies and exhibited an almost relentless determination. Still, the accusations had given the recommendation committee pause. On Friday Elizabeth had been called to Mr. Billings’ grand office, where she was asked copious questions about her recent exams. The experience was quite traumatic.

Seagrove was an elite school. Most of its students came from privileged backgrounds. This was not the case for Elizabeth. Her family had little money. She attended Seagrove on a full scholarship. The Blauvelt Award would help her family pay for college. So, it was with the same diligence which she applied to her studies that Elizabeth planned to unmask her accuser. She opened the school directory on her bed and began combing through the names. Seagrove was such a small and insular community. Twenty-one kids would be in her graduating class. Elizabeth knew it was inevitable that the person spreading rumors about her would come to light. It was just a matter of time.

1. Seagrove Academy was
 - A. a school for gifted students.
 - ☒ B. a school with many wealthy students.
 - C. a school where many kids lied and cheated.
 - D. a large school where it was hard to get to know people.

2. What is clear about the student who accused Elizabeth of cheating?
 - I - The student is a former friend of Elizabeth.
 - II - The student does not want anyone to know who he or she is.
 - III - The student is either lying or mistaken.

- A. I only
B. I and II
☒ C. II and III
D. I, II, and III
3. Which of the following is best described as brazen?
A. A dog chases a cat up a tree.
B. A little girl wins the National Spelling Bee with hard work.
☒ C. A man walks his dog during the rain.
☒ D. A woman steps in front of a bus to make it to stop.
4. Why is Elizabeth so sure that she will learn who has accused her of cheating?
A. Her friends will help her.
☒ B. The community is so small.
C. She thinks the person will come forward.
D. She thinks the person will be the recipient of the Blauvelt Award.
5. The Blauvelt Award is important to Elizabeth because it will
A. prove she is intelligent.
☒ B. help her pay for college.
C. make her parents proud.
D. prove she did not cheat.

CREATIVE WRITING (TOPIC 1)

It is believed that ^{children} should seek guidance from their parents when choosing a college major. Actually, their parents can be ~~handful~~ ^{useful} as they are more experienced but adults should not intervent in their children's life extensively.

First and foremost, parents guidance is regarded as an aid due to the fact that adolescents don't know much about real-world complexities. By obtaining help from their relatives, teenagers begin to consider ~~the~~ their future options more thoroughly. As a result, children have more potential for success in graduation and therefore in the job market.

On the other hand, there are some situations when ~~children's~~ parents' bother their children too much. Furthermore, some adolescents desire to obtain a profession, totally differing from one that their parents advised ~~to~~ them to get. Consequently, ~~teen~~ young people are not motivated to study and to graduate if they embrace guidance from their parents. The best choice would be to follow one's heart, and decide on a college major oneself. Despite having an opinion, differing from your parents' one, they children will definitely get a support if their parents are understanding and want ~~the~~ best for their child.

In conclusion, I think that the guidance from parents is valuable only in cases when their children want it. Embracing the opportunity to become a part of adult's experience, children contribute to ~~a~~ ^{the} comfort during their academic study. In the long I

REMOTE LEARNING

As our society is undergoing rapid and substantial changes, we are becoming more open-minded in terms of education. Zoom and other apps providing high-quality video and audio calls took off during covid-19 epidemia, boosting the field of online education. I'm ^{sp} of the opinion that remote learning can be equally effective compared to offline learning, ~~when~~ ^{if} properly organized.

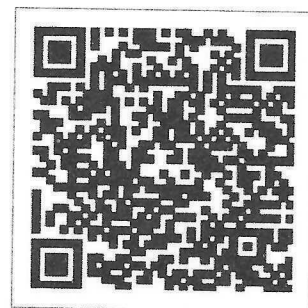

Of course, there are some requirements, which allow you to make the most of ^{your} online lessons. Firstly, online classes should not be overcrowded with users so that they ~~don't~~ ^{sp} become unwilling to turn on their microphones and cameras. Secondly, it is teacher's responsibility to keep listener's attention by asking questions. If these ~~conditions~~ ^{requirements} are met, neither students nor teachers will miss anything out. || 8

As for the upcoming objections from those who consider remote learning ineffective, I can address your reasoning. If you find your students getting distracted, there is only one way to solve the problem, which is to clamour for cameras on. If you are a student, not ~~being~~ able to focus on what the lecturer is saying, I bet the problem is in him, not ^{in your} remoteness from him. Some people also claim that ^{online} conferences can become unbearable because of the technical difficulties, but usually they stem from your or teacher's incompetence or a poor internet connection, which can be fixed in a couple of seconds. And the key to successful online learning is ^{the} responsiveness on questions like "Can you hear me well?" || 9

All things considered, online learning is not ^{any} too different from traditional classes, as it provides the ^{very} same ~~to~~ tools for communicating, ~~it~~ even including blackboards. However, ~~it~~ depends the quality of ^{learning} education depends on your attitude to it, as it does in the classroom, too. || 10

Today, the standard workweek, which is accepted in most parts of the world, is 40 hours. However, I don't think that it should stay as long as it is now. This is a burning question for a plenty of years already, and society has different opinions about this issue. Now I will explain why I agree that the workweek of 40 hours should be reconsidered and reduced.

The main reason for making the workweek shorter is that ~~40 hours~~ working for 40 hours a week on a daily basis is very tiring for an average person. A lot of people from my family and acquaintances are constantly ~~tired~~ feeling tired from their jobs. And the tiredness of workers ~~not~~ lowers the quality of the final product, so it could be negative both for the businesses and the consumers.

Another reason is that working for 40 hours every week could be monotonous and exhausting for people, influencing their mental health not in a good way. In some cases, overworking could even cause psychological disorders and illnesses. ~~That's~~ That's why making people overwork is violating their rights as human beings. And no person ~~should ever be treated that way at their workplace.~~

In conclusion, I would like to say that the standard workweek should be reconsidered, because the presently accepted amount could affect workers' ~~and~~ health and level of life negatively. I also think that the workweek should be reduced to 30-35 hours.

Nowdays ^{lots of} ~~myriads~~ people argue whether high school students can benefit from having part-time jobs while having classes. In spite of ^{issue} controversy of ~~this question~~, I think it is not the best decision ^{and} in order to support my point of view I would like to address some reasons and arguments. 13

A lot of people assume that having part-time jobs is a ^{highly} ~~valuable~~ valuable experience ~~as~~ for students. As not only will ~~students~~ ^{they} ~~understand~~ whether ~~they~~ ^{the chosen field} ~~this job~~ gives them pleasure or not but they ^{will} also ~~experience~~ gain knowledge how to do ^{the chosen} ~~kind of job it~~ ^{the job}. In deed, it is a great practise that can help students in the future. →

However, it has some drawbacks which can significantly affect the process of studying in ⁹⁵ school. 72

To begin with, ~~all the students~~ of high school ~~are~~ is always connected with some exams which students need to pass so as to enroll on a course ⁹⁵ in ~~university~~. Hence, there is a great deal of pressure on students, especially from parents and teachers.

They force them to study all the time. Some ^{adolescents} ~~students~~ even forget about their friends, interests ^{and} even sleep. ~~Such~~ Such stressful conditions can lead to unfavourable consequences for ^{both} students ~~themselves~~ and their results. In such a hectic schedule there is no time for part-time jobs as ^{teenagers} ~~students~~ are always exhausted after sleepless nights and endless preparation. 94

All these arguments lead to the conclusion that although having part-time jobs while attending classes can seem an ^{attractive} ~~great~~ opportunity for some ~~students~~. In reality it can ~~even~~ deteriorate the ~~situation~~ studying process as well as affect ^{students'} ~~their~~ health because ^{teenagers} ~~students~~ will have no time for relax during high school years. 48

АПЕЛЛЯЦИЯ

Прошу рассмотреть вопрос об изменении моей оценки по предмету Английский язык с «68,13» балла (-ов) на «70,13» балла (ов) по причине того, что в задании reading "8" подходят два варианта ответов: allegations ~~and~~ и accusations, ссылка на Oxford Dictionary эти слова являются синонимами и так же подходят по значению данному в задании.

This image shows a single sheet of white paper with horizontal blue or grey ruling lines. The lines are evenly spaced and run across the width of the page. There are approximately 20 lines visible. The paper appears to be a standard notebook page, possibly from a composition book. The edges of the paper are slightly irregular, suggesting it might be a scan of a physical document. There is no handwriting or other markings on the page.

Choosing a university major is a really complicated task for ~~most~~ teenagers. They often lack necessary life experience to understand what they prefer or how they could combine their interests and hobbies with their future career. This ambiguity makes young people seek advice from their "close circle" which primarily includes parents. However, parental guidance can turn out to be rather controversial.

~~plex~~ To start with considerable and caring parents have always been around, they have always been aware of their children's needs and wishes. Doing their best in order to help their children has become one of their life goals. ¹⁰⁰ It is not surprising that such people can advise something valuable and their intentions are always positive. Consequently, following their parents' advice seems to be quite a reasonable thing to do for teenagers.

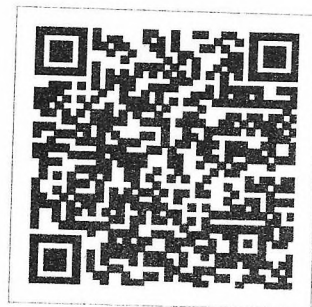

~~p~~ On the other hand "loving" parents may be selfish and unwilling to lose control over their children's lives. ¹⁵⁰ In this case parents often make teenagers follow their footsteps without realising what their children really want to achieve. This results in unsuccessful careers and low self-esteem of those teenagers who had no say while choosing a major which could meet their needs.

In conclusion, I would like to say that choosing a major is a stressful thing for most young people. Therefore they can benefit from their parents do not impose anything on them. Teenagers should understand ~~they~~ that they are the only people who bear responsibility for all steps in life and they should not live up to their parents' expectations, while choosing a university major or any other important thing. ²⁵⁰

Needless to say that choosing a future career is a cornerstone moment in the life of every person. Not only can the choice of a job significantly influence a person's level of perspective financial prosperity but it is also able to change one's overall lifestyle. It is for this reason that young people tend to be so indecisive and anxious about defining their future occupation. To cope with such a difficult situation, I believe that adolescents should ask for their parents' pieces of advice.

First of all, it is undeniable that parents possess far more experience than their children. The older generation must have ~~been~~^{met} with the necessity to choose a sphere of professional realisation in their early days, that is why elder people can share their reasons for choosing this or that job, their perception of perspectives in different working areas. Such invaluable information can ^{definitely} assist students in finding their occupation.

What is more, the majority of parents have a mature understanding of the modern world and labour market in particular. If younger people tend to be full of unreasonable and passionate ambitions, parents are the ones who are able to sensibly evaluate the current state of things. Children should listen to their mothers and fathers' opinions so as not to start pursuing a career that would not ~~be able~~ give them an opportunity to fulfill their basic necessities.

To conclude, I fully agree with the idea of the mentioned statement. Even though, young people should pave their life path while listening to their own heart, it is never wrong to seek for the opinions of beloved people and especially parents, those who have already reached some heights in different aspects of life.

There currently is a debate about the ~~number~~ number of working hours in a week. Some ~~people~~ people state that the accepted standard of 40 hours a week should be reduced to 30. Personally, I feel it would be a ~~wise~~ wise decision to make.

Firstly, according to ^{the} recent research, when people work less and get more rest, they tend to be more creative. ~~It is~~ It is especially applicable to artistic occupations: a designer, for example, will work more productively, if he/she gets more free time.

Secondly, it was proved through experiment that 30-hour work week makes employees more attentive and determined to their tasks, which means they will not be careless and will make less mistakes in their duties. This means doctors, teachers, and other people with jobs of high responsibility will be able to do better at their workplace.

Thirdly, having more time from their work, ~~and~~ people will overall be happier because they will be able to put more time into their hobbies and ^(or) spend it with their closest ones.

However, one might say that such workweek changes would mean that people will finish less tasks in a week. That is true, in fact, but it also means that ~~they will~~ there will be extra time, ~~for~~ for which companies could hire other employees. ~~That~~ Reducing the standard ^{workweek} to 30 hours will contribute to solving the problem of unemployment.

In conclusion, ~~My attitude~~ my attitude to reducing the workweek standard to 30 hours is positive. This ^{change} will improve the employees' ~~productivity~~ productivity and make them happier. ~~It will also contribute~~ Moreover, it will also help resolve part of the existing social problems.

The task of choosing one's academic path is undoubtedly a very demanding and difficult decision which will significantly impact the life ~~of~~ path of a person. Meanwhile some students rely solely on their own desires, ambitions and inclinations, others take their parents' advice in account and seek guidance from them. But is it correct to ask parents for advice on choosing a college major?

I think that it is correct and advisable. First of all, the student is still young and might not have enough wisdom or insight yet in order to see whether a given college major is worth ~~the~~ ~~time~~ taking. Secondly, the parents have known the child their whole life and might therefore know what kinds of college majors consuit him better.

On the other hand, sometimes it might be ~~an~~ the case that the parents undervalue their children and advise them to pick college majors that don't require much effort and dedication from the student. Additionally, parents do not usually know many universities, colleges or faculties since they have already gotten their higher education and do not need such information anymore.

Overall, seeking guidance and advice on deciding on a college major is an invaluable and important action which is correct to do. When deciding whether to follow one's parents' advice, one should keep in mind their age, their experience with the higher education system and their education level.

Part-time jobs are widespread among high school students nowadays. Although it is a controversial question whether to take a part-time job at school or not, I totally agree that such type of jobs can be beneficial for students. 38

In my opinion, part-time jobs have various advantages for high school students. Firstly, they give the students an opportunity to get useful work experience, which can help ^{them} to choose their future career. Secondly, part-time jobs offer the students a chance to earn their own money for personal needs. Thus, teenagers learn to be independent and financially literate. Finally, the students can get acquainted with numerous people while working. Having a lot of friends and acquaintances is undoubtedly a good reason for starting a part-time job. 87

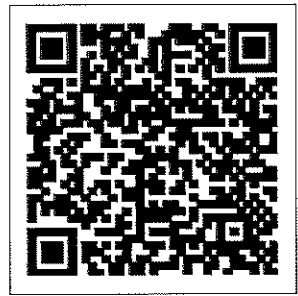

However, some people argue that part-time jobs are harmful for students. They say that working at high school influences students' academic performance. Academic results may get worse as students lack time for proper studying. In my mind, this disadvantage is outweighed by the benefits of part-time jobs. Moreover, the skills of setting priorities and time-management can help the students to solve the problem of shortage of time for studies. 70

To conclude, having a part-time job is a unique experience which benefits high school students greatly. A good part-time job develops both professional and communicative skills without harming students' academic performance. Therefore, taking a part-time job at high school is definitely worth it. 42

Nowadays a lot of people say that remote learning through ~~(technetog)~~ ~~(techt)~~ technologies like Zoom or Microsoft Teams can be equally effective compared to traditional in-person classroom learning. As for me, I mostly disagree with this statement. And while there are benefits to remote learning, I think it is not nearly as effective as traditional in-person education. To support my position, I will mention some arguments in support and against online learning. (09)

The main argument against remote learning is less control. When studying remotely, students, in mass, tend to skip lessons they see as useless, and not ^{to} do the assignments on time. This is because while the traditional education system has an ability to punish students that do not meet the criteria, remote education has none of that. With fully remote learning being introduced during the coronavirus pandemic, teachers could not get their students to do homeworks and make them attend Zoom conferences. Today, there ~~student~~ students are more likely to fail exams and get lazy, they ^{are likely to} have experienced some struggles with scores and deadlines. (100)

Another argument against remote learning comes from the lack of control, as students who study online can cheat on tests and exams, because there is no teacher to prevent it. It is also much easier to copy others' work or assignments.

Still, there are ~~(dea)~~ clear advantages to online education. For example, most students feel more comfortable at home than ~~for~~ at school or university. This, in some cases, allows online students to learn better and get higher scores on ^{cellular} in-person exams. Other benefits include the ability to save lessons and watch them later, and more self-control.

To conclude, I think that while traditional in-person classroom education ~~front~~ will not fade away in the foreseeable future, online education will continue to get more popular as more and more people [&] connect to the Internet. (11)

I agree that it is advisable for children to seek guidance from their parents when deciding on a college major. Parents have a wealth of life experience and can offer valuable insights and advice to help their make informed decisions about their future. However, it is important to note that while parental guidance can be helpful, ultimately the ~~best~~ decision should be made by the student themselves.

Parents can provide valuable insights into their child's strengths, weaknesses, and interests based on the years of observation. They can offer advice on the job market, salary potential, and the overall demand for a particular major. Additionally, parents can help their children explore the world and teach them how to make right choices in their life, explore career options and so on. Because of parents' life experience, they can help to choose a job or university.

On the other hand, some may argue that parents may project their own desires onto their children and steer them towards a particular major which may not align with the child's interests and abilities. This can create pressure and tension between parents and children. Additionally, some parents may not have some up-to-date knowledge of the current job market or the wide array of career options available today.

In conclusion, while parental guidance is important for children when deciding on a college major, it should be one of the many sources of information that the student considers. Ultimately, the decision should be based on the child's own interests, skills and passions. Parents should support their children in exploring the modern world. It is important for students to take ownership of their future and make right decisions that best align with their own goals.

Nowadays, technologies are the most popular thing for discussing. Our world has ^{an} amount of different technologies in a lot of ways. We should create new things, that can support scientists. For example, it can be new varieties of meeting in some difficult situations in the world. How it ~~have~~ was in 2019, when the people stopped going to their work. Because new virus - Covid 19 was ^{voc.} on the opened air. I think, that Zoom helped scientists to create a vaccine. 11

Currently, I agree with the statement, because Zoom helps people to meet without ~~straight~~ any contact. You can send messages and call by video. It's very simple for people. I think, that Zoom's priority audience ~~are~~ people for 10-60 y.o. It's always nice to speak with your friend before sleeping. But there are some negative examples. You can't give a material thing to each other. If there is your girlfriend, you can't kiss her. Your mobile or computer can ~~be~~ be battery off. You need the internet, but with this maybe we have some troubles. 14

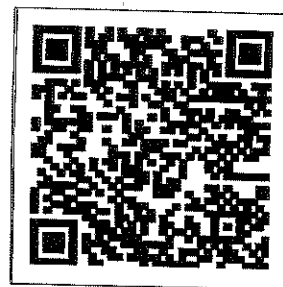

In conclusion, I think, that remote learning through technologies like Zoom can be equally effective compared to traditional in-person classroom learning, because every new technology ^{is} are better and better, they are doing our life easier and smarter. I hope, that people create more different things and technologies, which can help us in our perfect life. 55 0... 226 words

I think that it is a good idea to discuss your choise of a college major with your parents. I hold this position for a number of diffirent reasons.

Firstly, you should not discount your parents' wisdom. Their life experience may be diffirent from the one you have, but they were once faced with the same issue of deciding on a career path. If your parents succeded thanks to this choise, then they certainly have something worthwhile to say on this subject. Secondly, your parents only want what is good for you. They will definitely empathize with your struggle. Additionally, asking somebody for advice can reveal a diffirent perspective, give an unbiased ~~view~~ view on your strengths and weaknesses. Deciding on a college major is a big task, so evaluating the opinions of others might make it a lot easier.

Some would be put off by the idea of having such an impactful descision be made for them. However, this is not what it is about. You should not take anyone's words as gospel and you are allowed to have a disagreement. After all, it is through disagreement that healthy discussion is created. If the conversation remains civil, a lot of things will become much clearer all by themselves. Those who are distrustful of their parents' judgement should still give the argument on college majors a try. Even if no common ground can be found, your parents are likely going to encourage you to follow your heart regardless.

In conclusion, seeking guidance from parents when deciding on a college major is a good idea. It is almost certain to help children make the correct descision.

Should we work less?

It is widely accepted that many people are dissatisfied with the current standard workweek. They often feel stressed out and pray for this schedule being thoroughly reconsidered.

Those who support the idea mentioned above claim that we have to work 30 hours a week instead of 40. The reason for this is that workers get tired soon. They are not able to use all their energy to cope with the tasks they are given. Therefore, more and more people are experiencing burn-outs today. Moreover, they do not have ^{enough} time to spend with their family and friends.

There is also another point of view to be discussed. Personally, I believe reducing workweek standard will not be beneficial. Above all, 10 hours is a ^{great} difference. I think that people want to work less only because ~~it~~ of a lack of interest in their jobs. Besides, ~~if we have~~ ^{the} less working hours are, the less is produced or done. If people refuse to work as much as they do, they will soon complain of deficit of some goods in shops. They are also supposed to have a smaller salary in that case. I ~~cannot~~ cannot admit that working 6 hours a day is worth it all. I support the view that people are able ^{to} manage their time properly, without work preventing them from having some spare time. After all, our ancestors had to work even more, but I doubt if they had ever complained more than us.

To sum up, I would like to say that heated debates about the most appropriate standard workweek are likely to continue. Nevertheless, I am sure that we have to pull ourselves together and persist in work without many complaints.

Some argue that the presently accepted standard workweek of 40 hours should be reconsidered and potentially reduced to 30 hours. I am certainly inclined to thinking the same. However, there are not only benefits to reducing the workweek but also drawbacks that should be mentioned.

First and foremost, by doing so we would allot more spare time to everyone. Ten hours a week equals to about an hour a day which can be spent with nearest and dearest. Yet this might not be enough to enjoy it to the fullest since it ~~could~~ easily be wasted while commuting.

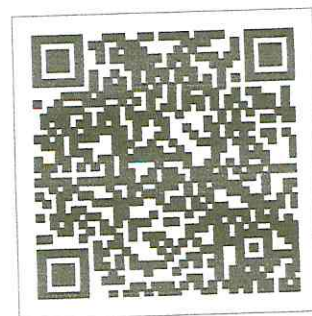

Moreover, ~~by reducing the workweek we have~~ a great chance to make the population healthier. Since many people have sitting jobs, they often have dry eyes and severe backpain. A spare hour a day would alliviate such conditions. On the other hand, some argue that these measures might not be serious enough ^{because} one has to make an appointment with a doctor to ease such ailments. Therefore, the reduction in working hours would not solve the problem.

Last but not least, if ~~the working hours are reduced~~, people are encouraged to learn something new, take up new hobbies etc. as they have more free time. However, most people do not even realise that ~~extra~~ free hours are needed since everyone is used to such a timetable. Consequently, the reduction could lead to confusion among the public.

To summarise, there are both points for and against a 30-hour workweek. People could spend more time with their families and take up new hobbies but a 10-hour reduction might be too small to make any difference. From my point of view, this is a great opportunity for the government to try to solve the issue of overworking and contribute to improving ~~the~~ living conditions.

It goes without saying that money plays ^a very important role for individuals, regardless their age. The older people become, the more needs they want to possess. For those who is studying ~~is~~ the problem related to finance ^{is} especially significant. In this essay I will discuss whether it is worthy to spend your leisure time doing part-time job or it is better to deep in learning process. 60

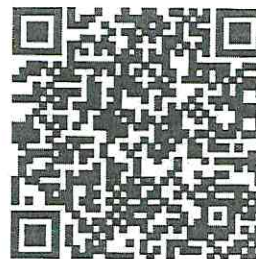

First of all, while having any kind of jobs students can develop the skills which are required for embarking successful future career. Moreover, it can be helpful in terms of choosing your future occupation. Also, when ~~young people~~ teenagers touch upon the lives of older people it can be more comfortable to get used to the changes between the periods of childhood and maturity.

Nevertheless, young people can face many troubles while getting acquainted with ^{the} jobs. In particular, they can play ^{due to the lack of time} truant and consequently ^{get} bad grades, being not able to keep up with the study program. It can also conduce to bad relations with parents families who expect them to be the first in class in terms of marks. Furthermore, it can be complex to enter the university without ^{grasping} special knowledge in some fields. In its turn it can be complicated to seek for a high-paid job with different kinds of ~~perks~~ perks. 61

To sum up, I would like to recommend teenagers not to have ^{or} part-time job since it can be harmful for their studying. As for the financial side of this issue, students had better get pocket money from their parents and gradually improve their knowledge for the best result which ~~virtually~~ ^{virtually} ~~guarantee~~ ^{passing it} virtually guarantee a successful and wealthy future. 62

~~lex~~ Sooner or later every student faces the ^{obligatory} ~~obligatory~~ condition of choosing a college major. While some believe that parents should appear as the influential advisors, others support the idea of the children making this decision personally. ~~I think~~ balance should be established between these two options. As far as I am concerned, ^{two} ~~two~~

On the one hand, parents are ~~one~~ of the closest people to the child. They have seen him growing up from the cradle and developing into ^{an} ~~and~~ adult. Life-long interests and passions were formed during the time spent at home, parents have witnessed all of them. Therefore, they are able to express a constructive opinion on the topic and provide an outside perspective. Their thoughts can actually be very refreshing and help a young person to make up his mind ^{about} ~~about~~ the future path.

On the other hand, taking into consideration only the ^{parents'} views can lead to the fatal ¹⁵⁰ outcome. It cannot be left out that parents sometimes insist on ^{the} ~~the~~ certain career perspective for their own advantage. It can be done to ~~show~~ ^{show} off in front of the ~~for~~ relatives and prove them wrong. For instance, ~~some people believe~~ for some people being a surgeon is much more prestigious than becoming a musician. Actually, some parents even ~~to~~ make their dreams come true through their children. It is possible that they were forced to ~~go into the~~ pursue the path unappealing to them.

In conclusion, it is vital to point out that parents are able to provide excellent career guidance without any doubt. However, ^{personal} ~~personal~~ opinion and gut feeling should not be neglected. So, I think children should be encouraged to seek help from their parents but reminded to take it ^{with} ~~with~~ a pinch of salt.

Nowadays, learning online started to get more and more ubiquitous, given the pandemic a couple of years ago. People started to get accustomed to staying at home and having a lecture or class through Zoom. But is it really effective in comparison with traditional in-person classroom learning?

First and foremost, attendance ~~to~~ ^{not} online lectures certainly increased ~~due~~ ^{so} due to accessibility as it was quite easy to be present ~~&~~ during ^a call in Zoom. All that people had to do ^{was} is just turn on their phones ^{lex} or laptops and enter the call. However, with time the amount of students that ~~attended~~ ^{lex} classes started to reduce because of the laziness. I believe being in a comfortable environment at home does not provide students with a sense of obligatory ^{lex}. Being present at ~~school~~ school, however, put pupils among their peers and that helps them to be more involved in studying. Secondly, during online classes it is ~~to~~ ^{se} difficult for teachers to see their students and their reactions to information ~~&~~ they receive from them. Thus, they could not tell whether all students grasped what was taught. Additionally, not all students ^{do not} see it necessary to turn on their cameras, therefore it puts teachers ^{in more} ~~at~~ difficult ⁱⁿ position ~~to~~ ^{so} as definitely not all students pay attention ⁱⁿ at such classes. Finally, I assume not all people would have an opportunity to be present at these lectures as not all families can afford to buy a laptop or tablets, that's why ~~in my opinion~~ ^{in my opinion} school must provide for students in need if they want to switch ^{from} ~~in-person~~ ^{classes} lessons to online lessons.

To sum up, it is not efficient to study through technologies such as Zoom. However, some people would find it quite effective as they would be more at ease at ~~the~~ ^{to} during study sessions at home.

Choosing a college major is ~~definitely~~ one of the most important decisions in a child's life. Many children need advice on what to pick, so they turn to their mom and dad for help. However, is it really recommended that children seek guidance from their parents or should they just make the decision by themselves? 50

In some cases asking the ^{parents} ~~parent's~~ opinion is the best option. Some children may not know who they want to become when they're older. Some may only need encouragement to make a choice. Parents are ^{also} able to provide support, ~~encouragement~~ inform children about many different options they have and help them decide. Another thing worth mentioning is that while friends may not provide you with accurate judgement of your abilities, due to being jealous or not knowing you that well, parents know their children inside out and always wish the best for them.

On the other hand, 150 consulting your parents can be a horrible mistake for some. Not only can the child's and the parents' opinions be vastly different, but the parents may not accept any other one. This can lead to children getting a degree that they have absolutely no interest in. Also, for some people ~~getting~~ ^{not} having a second, third or even a fourth option can be a disadvantage. Rather than easing their worry about not being accepted to college ^{with} ~~to get~~ the major they want, they start doubting whether the college major they chose is the right one for them.

Considering the reasons and examples 250 I've mentioned before, I think it's best for children to get advice on what college major to pick, but not necessary from their parents. Children should seek guidance from someone they trust and whether that is their relatives, friends or teachers doesn't matter.

Elizabeth was brooding in her room. She had sought asylum there since spurious gossip about her began circulating at Seagrove Academy last week. Not that Elizabeth had ever been considered a social butterfly. She preferred to live vicariously through the stories of her more brazen friends: late night partying, fraternizing with boys, childish pranks. Still, she had taken to being more by herself than usual since the allegations surfaced.

She was up for consideration for the highly coveted Blauvelt Award, a scholarship recognizing "academic integrity and promise." A student had given headmaster Billings an anonymous "tip" that Elizabeth had cheated on several tests this year. The accusations were laughable. Elizabeth had long been a stellar student at Seagrove. She lacked a natural intelligence – this was true. However, she compensated for this deficit through diligence and perseverance; she was very thorough in her studies and exhibited an almost relentless determination. Still, the accusations had given the recommendation committee pause. On Friday Elizabeth had been called to Mr. Billings' grand office, where she was asked copious questions about her recent exams. The experience was quite traumatic.

Seagrove was an elite school. Most of its students came from privileged backgrounds. This was not the case for Elizabeth. Her family had little money. She attended Seagrove on a full scholarship. The Blauvelt Award would help her family pay for college. So, it was with the same diligence which she applied to her studies that Elizabeth planned to unmask her accuser. She opened the school directory on her bed and began combing through the names. Seagrove was such a small and insular community. Twenty-one kids would be in her graduating class. Elizabeth knew it was inevitable that the person spreading rumors about her would come to light. It was just a matter of time.

It is often claimed that children should seek guidance from their parents when deciding on a college major. I'm inclined to believe that parents' guidance is an incredibly valuable source, but not ^{the main} one. 2p

On the one hand, parents are those people who ⁵⁰ know obtain wide knowledge about the labour market, ^{And} sought ~~for~~ ^{after} ~~lex~~ professions and job experience in general due to their age and their own life experience. They are able to give their children the right direction, which they can follow in order not to choose to major in the field that won't help to get a lucrative job and excellent career in the future. 100

On the other hand, parents' ^{opinion} sometimes can be only an obstacle for their kids who are to decide on their college major. Two generations do have different views on the modern world. ^{And the education system} It will not be wrong to say that it can be more beneficial for graduates to listen ¹⁵⁰ to their heart and rely on their own interests, preferences and desires since they know better for what they have a vocation. lex

All things considered, I tend to believe that young people should not be dismissive of their parents' thoughts when deciding on a college major. However, it is better to take into account your inner interests and wishes, because it is possible to self-realise and achieve the harmony with yourself this way. ^{Graduates from school} ~~One~~ have to remember that the decision on what major to choose and where to continue the academic path is solely on their own shoulders.

Throughout the whole history of humanity knowledge has been power and an asset. In today's fast paced, high-demanding world several ways of receiving information are available thanks to the technological innovations and the development of educational system. I firmly believe that remote learning through technologies like Zoom or other applications cannot be equally effective compared to traditional in-person classroom learning. To my mind, the way of studying that we are all accustomed ^{with} is undoubtedly more efficient as it provides the involved ones with face-to-face communication allowing the participants exchange thoughts, feedback by discussing confusing topics or expressing emotions. Moreover, sitting in a classroom helps students concentrate better and delve into the studying cases fully. Thus, focusing on learning material enables them to imply critical thinking and comprehend the information to the fullest extent. 122

Speaking of remote learning, some advantages to it might be pointed out, for instance, it is rather convenient being able to start the educational process in any place whether it is a classroom, a café or restaurant or even home. However, the downturn is that a variety of distractions appears during a session: outside noise, the desire to unwind a bit and surf the Net to watch something unrelated to studying and many other factors that are out of our control. ~~The environment surrounding a student may be unsuitable to~~ A long time spent using an electronic device, looking directly at the screen may tire one out so that he/she ~~is~~ will not be able to pay attention to everything going ~~on~~ ⁱⁿ a lesson. Consequently, the information will not be absorbed correctly, some points will be missed ~~at~~. 124

Overall, I am convinced that traditional in-person learning is the most productive one as it contains students' devotion to the subject, efficient, on-time communication and emotional aspects that help people get knowledge on a psychological level. 26

Nowadays it is extremely hard for teenagers to choose their college major. ~~New programmes appear every year since the world is constantly changing, which makes it almost impossible to find something difficult to choose one.~~ Since the world is constantly changing, new programmes appear every year, which makes it difficult to choose one. So, it is advisable for children to seek guidance from their parents when deciding on a college major.

Personally, I fully agree with this statement. ~~First of all,~~ I am finishing school this year so I already chose my college major. Speaking from the experience, it would have been an impossible task if my parents did ~~not~~ help me. I believe that it is ~~important~~ essential to seek your parents' guidance when you have to make an important decision. ~~Choosing your college major is one of these situations.~~ Parents are more experienced in life and they know more about our world than children. That is why ~~children teenagers need their parents' help~~ in order to make a right decision teenagers need their parents' help.

However, some people believe that this statement is not true. They think ~~that~~ that children should decide on their college major without their parents. ~~because~~ In my opinion, most children are not sure what future they want and who they want to become because they are still developing. So, parents can help teenagers and guide them through possible options of college majors. ~~They can~~ that would be best for their children. My friend ~~who~~ is two years older than me did not want ~~to~~ her parents' help when she was deciding on a college major and she ended up switching them three times before she found what she truly enjoyed!

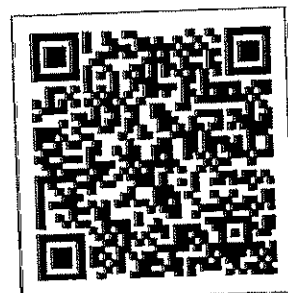

In order to conclude I would like to say that it is important for children to seek their parents' guidance and help when deciding on a college major. In order to ~~make a right~~ not make mistakes.

Creative writing - Topic No 1

Deciding on a college major is a life-changing ~~decision~~ experience most children struggle with. High school students find themselves in despair when it comes to choosing a field they want to pursue a career in. Their parents often try to influence ~~their children's~~ choice of their children and come up with advises. Can parental guidance be helpful to teenagers or are adults always giving the younger generation the wrong direction? ~~That's~~ ^{this is} the question I'd like to discuss in this essay.

In my opinion, students should take their parents' suggestions into consideration, because they might coincide with their own. Being brought up in a certain family means taking in hobbies, habits and likings of one's family members. So, in this case, ~~one's~~ parents can be not that different from their offsprings. For example, if you like studying physics and Maths and your father ~~works as an~~ ^{is} an engineer, listening to his opinion on ~~an~~ the issue can help you with choosing a college major. ~~and~~ that is right for you, because your closest relative ~~has~~ ^{likes} things similar to your preferences. Adults have already experienced things that are just about to happen with you, so their advice can prevent you from making mistakes they've already made.

On the other hand, if you are not in good terms with your parents or they aggressively push you to decide on a major, that you don't like, ~~advices from them won't do any good. In a situation where older people make children~~ If your mother is making you choose a degree in medicine and you can't stand Biology in school, her opinion isn't trustworthy.

In conclusion, students are perfectly capable of ~~deciding~~ deciding on a college major and can do it without asking for their parents' help. However, if your parents are already professionals in a field you might like, their opinion can lighten the burden of making such choice for you. But if you and your ~~parents are poles apart~~, their advice can be harmful to you.

Creative writing - Topic No 1.

The topic of remote learning through technologies has been discussed very often since the development of this studying technique during the pandemic. My opinion is that such learning can not be equally effective compared to ^{the} offline one. I think that it is hard for the students to concentrate on the process of studying because of a large number of external distractions. In addition, some students may not be able to afford electronic devices required for learning and as a result they miss out the material.

I would also point out that it is harder for teachers to control students during online meetings than ^{during} offline. To prove my statement, I would like to give an example based off my personal experience. For a rather long period of time my school had to use remote learning method. This experience was not very good because people often cheated on tests, pupils were constantly absent or not paying any attention during our Zoom meetings, while some teachers were struggling with the use of electronic appliances due to their lack of experience.

However, I think that remote learning through technologies can be effective if a person is motivated enough to keep concentrated on the process of studying. This is why private tutorship developed with the rise of remote learning and can be called effective and suitable for many people.

To sum up, my opinion is that online learning with the use of technologies can not be as effective as offline learning nowadays, but some aspects of it may be integrated into the studying process as one of many accessible methods.

Since the early COVID-19 pandemic days, students from all over the world have been being provided²⁵ with remote learning opportunities by the educational institutions they have been attending with ^{the} help of different online platforms. The topic of distant learning has been extremely popular and controversial among the members of our society for quite some time due to various reasons. As for me, I tend to disagree with the statement that remote learning through technologies like Zoom can be equally effective compared to traditional in-person classroom learning, as the disadvantages of this method of studying significantly outweigh its advantages.

Firstly, many financially underprivileged families are not able to purchase electronic devices such as tablets or computers for their children without financial assistance from others due to ~~unaffordable~~^{high} prices of the mentioned gadgets. This leads to increasing inequality levels between those who are raised in affluent households and those who cannot afford such expensive things. This ~~inequality~~ makes it even harder for the ~~underprivileged~~ underprivileged students to ~~enrol~~^{enrol} into prestigious universities or be successful in their future careers.

Secondly, it is hard for teachers to supervise their students during exams and tests and prevent them from cheating with ease.

~~Moreover~~ Moreover, the majority of students find it exceptionally hard to not get distracted during their online classes. As almost ~~nobody~~ nobody ~~could prevent them~~ is able to prevent children from ^{paying} focusing their attention ~~on~~ to unnecessary things, the pupils tend to lose ~~their~~ their self-control and stop focusing on learning what would turn out to be beneficial for them in the future. 26

Needless to say that remote learning technologies have increased in popularity in recent years. More and more schools all over the world imply services like Zoom into their ^{curriculum} educational process in order to optimize the educational ~~process~~ process. The topic of ~~the~~ effectiveness of these methods ^{is still} ~~are~~ ~~will~~ widely discussed, ~~by~~ although the experience of ⁵⁰ last few years has shown that they can be equally ² sufficient compared to traditional in-person classroom learning and even offer a number of significant advantages.

Firstly, online education is convenient and lets the students arrange their working space ^{the} most comfortable ~~and way~~. It helps avoid the noise and hustle ²⁰⁰ that is often considered a major issue in traditional ~~are~~ classrooms full of other children. ~~Furthermore~~, This benefit applies to both students and ~~the~~ teachers as it is much easier for the latter to organize the students online.

Furthermore, while studying remotely the students are exposed to a large database of learning materials that can be accessed without carrying a great number of heavy books in their bags. This ~~that~~ allows them to get the ~~need~~ needed information quicker and focus on more important aspects of learning. ¹⁵⁰

Nevertheless, some people ^{claim} ~~argue~~ that ~~remote~~ studying through technologies cannot be ~~as~~ effective enough. A common ^{argument} ~~reason~~ ¹⁰⁰ against ~~it~~ is the problem of distractions that occur while ~~the~~ studying online. It is true that children are likely to lose their attention during the educational process. However, it is ~~their~~ parents' responsibility to teach their kids proper discipline and help them organize their working space. Moreover, this issue takes place at regular classrooms as well and requires a complex solution. ²⁵⁰

In conclusion, it is important to say that the world is constantly changing and the technology is ~~getting~~ ^{the rise of} starting to play a vital role in our lives. Education is advancing too and remote learning can be considered a ¹⁵⁵ sign of progress.

One cannot deny the importance of having a skill to earn money as a student. However, sometimes it is difficult to find the right balance between a part-time job and school. In my view, working as a ^{high} school student may be beneficial for ~~the~~ challenges that are encountered in life³⁰.

Firstly, it would be practical to emphasize that most teenagers struggle with pocket money. It is common knowledge that they have many needs, ~~some~~ some of which can be satisfied with financial support. ~~Therefore~~ getting a part-time job is the first thing that comes to mind. Not only is it a great idea in terms of gaining experience for a future career¹¹⁰, but it is also an opportunity to learn to manage time between school and other activities.

Secondly, it is undeniable that having a part-time job helps ~~to~~ develop stamina while going to school. There is no doubt that some students¹⁵⁰ may be overstressed due to their preparation for exams. However, a part-time job may be more challenging than studying, as it has crucial responsibilities that are necessary to take in order to meet ~~the~~ demands of a job. As a result, school~~work~~ problems are tackled in an effective way due to experie²⁰⁰ obtained from a job.

As we can all agree, COVID-19 has changed our lives drastically and introduced to our day-to-day lives a number of technologies, notably online ~~schools~~ classes via Zoom. While I agree that it was an effective solution during the time when offline learning was unavailable, it certainly has its downsides that affect children greatly.

After returning to offline education, teachers all over the world reported severe underperformance amongst students. Children were incapable of solving tasks accordingly to their grade level. Other than that, teachers also reported severe lack of discipline as well as inability to concentrate. There are several reasons ^{to} this complex problem.

First, and foremost, the educational program was not cut for the online format. At the time there were no regulations nor ~~tools~~ to properly handle the process. Teachers and students were blindly navigating the intricacies of the online education. For example, there were no whiteboards in an online classroom, and ~~these~~ those are important to teaching as you could graphically explain something to students. Since ~~ever~~ since then a variety of tools has been introduced, including whiteboards, but this does not fully solve the problem.

The second reason is the lack of proper space for studying in most of the households. Children often ~~learned~~ learned in their bedrooms, which creates a loose atmosphere. After all, why would you dress up nicely and sit dutifully before the laptop when you can turn off the camera and do something else? There is no real solution to this problem as it would require a parent controlling and disciplining a child as well as dedicating separate room for the child's studies, which most families simply cannot afford.

In conclusion, remote learning, unfortunately, cannot be as effective as in-person learning yet as there are issues that require solution.

The extent of children's reliance on their parents and the latter's influence on their children's lives often happens to be the subject of a heated discussion. However, simply seeking guidance can indeed have a positive effect.

To start with, parents have more knowledge and life experience than their children. They might be able to discourage their children from choosing a college major that will not help them in pursuing the career they want. Moreover, they might help to conjure up a more realistic image of their children's dream job, thus correcting the choice of the college major. Some argue that many parents choose how their children's life should go and pressure them to live up to that standard without asking what they want, and this way asking for guidance turns into an argument. As this might be true for some families, it is important to note that children's wishes should always be considered. Forcing a dedicated artist to become a surgeon will be harmful to both a parent-child relationship and the child's life.

Another counter argument is that children should choose their college ~~major~~ major themselves as this is the ~~the~~ start of their adult life and they should take responsibility. While true to some extent, children should always have their parents available to ~~to~~ ask for support and guidance, especially at such an important stage of their lives.

To sum up, if the relationship between parents and their children had been built on mutual trust and respect, the parents helping their children with choosing their college major can only be beneficial.

Nowadays education is one of the most crucial parts of people's lives. That's why, it is usually cumbersome for children to make the right ~~choice~~ ~~decide~~ decision. Some people believe that teenagers had better follow their parents' instructions when it comes to opting for a college major. However, I disagree with this point of view and do believe that children have to choose their further education by their own.

First and foremost, parents' studying experience might be not so germane and relevant, as ^{an} educational system undergoes changes always. Owing to that, they could guide their children basing on outside facts and information, missing new great opportunities.

Furthermore, I guess that on no condition does anyone know teenagers better than they know themselves. Of course, they might be childish and immature but being always led by someone, they would never find themselves.

I do believe that there is always something children want to develope in. That's why they need to follow their own dreams, ^{but} not parents' ones. Even though teenagers' first decision may be wrong, they would not place a blame on their parents. Such experience could teach them to take responsibility ~~for~~ for what they have done.

To draw a conclusion, deciding on a college major is always a complicated task. There is nothing but in asking parents for giving some tips or recommendations. However, the ultimate decision should be made only by children themselves.

In today's world more and more people are becoming concerned about some issues related to technologies and progress. This fact has encouraged me to think over the presented statement mentioning remote learning tools as Zoom.

Personally, I do not reckon that any studies at distance can be as effective as ⁸⁰tēt-a-tēt lessons. Despite differing views on this matter, I am sure I have enough grounds to prove my thoughts.

Firstly, online education depends on a plethora of factors: the stable Internet connection, correct work of electronic devices, distracting family members and ambience itself. The list is endless. On the contrary, ¹⁰⁰traditional classes provide calm, suitable spaces where a student does not have to care about the surroundings and can plunge into work.

Secondly, few ~~people~~ people generally possess enough determination, consciousness and willpower to make themselves sit still and absorb knowledge in front of the computer. One click of the mouse is an extremely fragile barrier between a dreary Zoom lesson and a Youtube fold. On the other hand, while studying offline you become more disciplined and concentrated, so any thought of losing focus makes you ⁹⁰cold feet, since you feel owing to the lecturers and do not ~~even~~ dare to let ⁹⁰them down.

Thirdly, the major part of studies is, in my opinion, an eye-to-eye ^{live} contact which is, consequently, ¹⁰⁰lacked during Zoom meetings. It seems to me that if you cannot seize on spot emotions of the professor, ~~cannot~~ analyze the mimics and body language, these lessons are meaningless.

To draw the conclusion, I claim that online studies are no decent substitute ¹⁰⁰for traditional in-person classroom learning.

Online education has played an important role in the lives of many teenagers in 2020 during the Covid-19 pandemic. Although the pandemic is over and now children are allowed to attend classes offline, remote education is still in demand as many people consider it ⁵⁰more effective ¹⁰⁰way to learn. I disagree with this statement and support traditional in-person learning. In this essay I would like to explain my position.

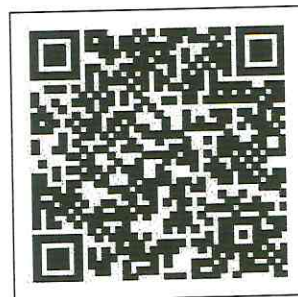

In my opinion, school plays a big role in the lives of young students not only because there they ¹⁰⁰learn study various subjects but also because at school children learn how to communicate with other people. When they study remotely, they lack this experience. It is hard to make new friends among strangers in ¹⁵⁰the group chat. Besides, it is harder for teachers to understand what each student struggles with when the students only send their homeworks and sometimes speak during cloud meetings. During face to face lessons a teacher can speak with each student and help them with their personal problems.

However, many people may disagree with me. There are also some advantages of online learning. It can be more comfortable for students. They do not have to wake up hours before the lessons start to get dressed properly and arrive to their school. Wearing comfortable clothes and feeling themselves at home may also increase their motivation to study as there will be no such ²⁰⁰distractions things that usually annoy teenagers as uniform. They will focus more on the learning process ²⁵⁰than on bad relationships with classmates and untasty food at the ~~cant~~ cafeteria.

Nevertheless, these things are very small comparing the benefits of traditional education. Studying face to face, students learn about the society they live in and ^{learn} how to deal with people. In my opinion, it is the most important things teenagers should learn at school. ²⁹

It is undeniable that students who combine their studies with working part-time may find it beneficial. However, is it a good idea to apply yourself to considerably different things at the same time?

Firstly, the issue that could be addressed according to the topic is that having a part-time job can have a negative effect on students' marks and affect the quality of the education. Thus, a part-time job is not an excellent option for everyone as not every student is capable of doing it. That's why a part-time job is not advantageous for everyone.

Secondly, being a high school student is the stage of life when young people take pleasure in expressing themselves ~~with~~ by extraordinary outfits or hairstyles. However, in order to purchase brand new clothes or go to the hairdressers, the students face the choice between asking parents for money and getting a job. In this case, a part-time job may become a great beginning ~~for students~~ to start earning their own money and buy desired things at their own expense. 174

In addition, working part-time may not only help to acquire new skills and find a source to make money, but it also helps students to learn a value for money. Also, working from a young age enables teenagers to become more responsible and organised since it takes a good level of self-discipline. ~~and~~ Therefore, getting a job at an early age is useful.

To conclude, according to considered points, a part-time job is both advantageous and significant for those who are on the point of becoming adults. 86

The usage of modern technologies had ^{sp} became highly widespread all around the world. Everyone has at least one smartphone and many people have computers or laptops. Quite often we are obligated to bring our gadgets to work place on ^{sp} school, and many students attend classes while staying home and virtually studying through programmes like Zoom. Both teachers and students may ask themselves: can remote learning be as effective as traditional? I'd ^{sp} like to share my opinion on this topic. 16

There are many students that don't ^{sp} feel comfortable being in places filled with a lot of people. Also, it can be quite distracting when scholars are being 'naughty' and loud, while the teacher cannot calm them down. I think it is much easier to listen to lectures ^{? voc} or read literature books in silence, and you can create peace full atmosphere in your room and be able to work on your studies much more effectively.

However, some students may take advantage of the fact that teachers cannot fully see you during Zoom classes. It is much easier to cheat on the tests or get distracted by scrolling social media on your phone when nobody is controlling your studying process. It may result in scholars ending up uneducated or even unemployed. 128

In conclusion, students must be able to behave ^{and respectfully} seriously towards teachers and control the way you learn things by yourself. If ^{a scholar} ~~a person~~ will keep calm and keep studying, both methods of teaching will be effective. 38 16 242 words

As technologies become more accessible and widespread, more problems and questions appear in all spheres of life. Education is not an exception. With the remote learning being more convenient and saving a lot of time, is it as effective as traditional learning? As for me, I believe that the former can never substitute the latter. ?

First of all, the main purpose of education is socialization. While attending school, children get used to communication, social contacts, which are inevitable in "real" life, they learn how to act and behave themselves. Hence, lessons in Zoom don't allow ^{the} children to properly socialize. Secondly, the attention level is considerably lower at home. ~~The~~ Any classroom is created for the children to be attentive for a long time, while at home there is everything to distract a child from studying: ~~very~~ tasty smells, a cat, a dog, ~~near~~ relatives walking around the room and speaking, computer games ^{etc.} and ~~more~~. Finally, online lessons can never be as engaging as ^{the} offline ones. The possibilities are endless during face-to-face communication: from debates and quizzes to outdoor lessons and educational games. None of these can be held through the computer.

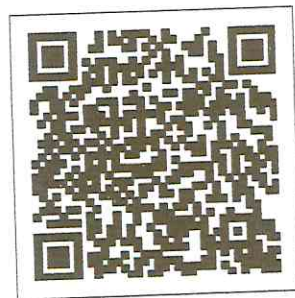

To conclude, I would like to make my point of view a little bit more clear. It is out of the question that online learning is helpful for those who live in big cities, and it was the only option during the pandemic. However, in terms of effectiveness of education, traditional in-person classroom learning is ~~clearly~~ definitely in the lead, being supreme in a considerable number of features.

Nowadays a lot of high school students combine their studies with their part-time jobs. The given statement claims that having part-time jobs can be beneficial for those students who are able to work after their classes. I agree with ^{the} ~~this~~ statement and I want to explain my point of view by using a few arguments.

To begin with, a part-time job is ^{a great opportunity} ~~a good way~~ to earn some money. Money ~~is~~ ^{is} always in demand among students because ~~they~~ most many of them have to pay for the education or the accommodation. As it is hard to win a scholarship, ~~a part-time job is a great opportunity~~ ~~he~~ applying for a part-time job is an easier way to get money. 109

Moreover, a part-time job can help high school students gain experience. ~~Undoubtedly~~ Although students learn different subjects and attend lectures, ~~they~~ ~~is~~ it ~~is~~ may be hard for them to ~~become~~ ^{real} specialists without any practice. While practicing students improve their skills and learn how to ~~behave~~ ^{work} in a team. That is why ~~a~~ part-time jobs are not only ~~be~~ beneficial but also necessary for students whose main goal is to become successful in ~~their~~ ^a future ~~profession~~ ^{career}. It is also worth mentioning that ~~part-time jobs~~ ^{students} can ~~be~~ ^{be} have no connect~~ed~~ ^{ed} to their future jobs. For example, a waiter's job develops worker's ~~resp~~ communication skills and patience. ~~These skills are needed to get workers~~ ^{These skills are needed to get workers} ~~Everyone needs~~ ^{Everyone needs} these skills no matter which job ^{choose} 112

Nowadays it is generally considered that online learning through technologies is quite beneficial for many teachers and students all around the world. However, some people argue that such remote learning platforms fail to be effective in contrast to traditional in-person learning.

First of all, I suppose that remote learning can be considered ⁵⁰ more ^{help} include given that many people receive an opportunity to study various subjects which were not available for them before. For example, citizens of different countries are able to enroll in educational ~~programmes~~ courses abroad without ~~having to travel~~ being forced to travel. Moreover, online classes through platforms like Zoom may reduce stress and anxiety that can be caused by difficulties associated with commuting to school, universities.

In addition, it also proves remote learning also proves to be quite economical as you do not have to spend money on commuting. Actually, for the majority of ~~students~~ online learning. Actually, in my opinion, online learning is incredibly effective as I can study at my own pace and, therefore, I memorise and understand information ~~better and more~~ more thoroughly. Frankly speaking, Plus, the atmosphere during online classes is relaxed and serene, consequently, it provides teachers and pupils with an opportunity to form a stronger connection with each other that is based on mutual respect and ~~sympathy~~. Also, Another advantage of online studying is that shy and humble pupils are able to participate in ~~different~~ interesting activities more due to the fact that remote learning they feel some sense of privacy.

In conclusion, I would like to say that I firmly believe that remote learning is advantageous not only for students, but also for teachers. Quarantine pushed us to use our computers more and create new technologies for working and studying from our homes. Most of the students had to use programs like Zoom to attend their classes online. Some of them think that remote learning through technologies can be equally effective compared to traditional in-person classroom learning. Personally, I do not agree with this opinion and I have several reasons supporting my position.

Firstly, I think that remote learning makes students more lazy. For the most of the people studying from home does not feel like real studying. Students choose to hide their faces with avatar pictures and pretend that their microphones do not work. All of this leads to skipping the program. The teacher can not do anything to solve this problem because it is an online lesson. It also happened to our class in 2020. When we got back to classroom learning later we understood how much we did not know. It took a lot of time to slowly get used to real studying again.

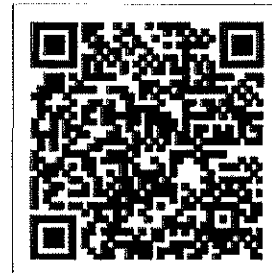

Secondly, students have more possibilities to cheat on their tests. Even if the person's camera is on, he can easily use the phone without anyone noticing it. Students can help each other through their group chat. Nowadays we have a lot of programs that help us to make studying easier and faster. We even have the Artificial Intelligence that knows an answer to any question. With all of these technologies students can get perfect marks without spending time on learning, but they will find themselves in a position where they are lacking the real knowledge.

In conclusion, I want to say that remote learning can be effective and convenient for people who are able to use it for their advantage. But from my own experience, most of the students of my age can not study without anyone controlling them. I believe that traditional in-person classroom learning is the best option for schools.

It is a well-known fact that choosing a college major is ~~really~~ not ~~important~~, only important, but also sometimes ~~hard~~ difficult. That is why it is a great idea to ~~or~~ seek help from parents when ~~choos-~~ making a decision that influences one's future career.

First of all, parents know their children really well. ~~Moreover, they~~ ~~are~~ They know the personality traits that their ~~child~~ ~~offspring~~ possess, so they ~~can~~ are able to ~~often~~ assess whether or not a college major is the right fit for their children. Moreover, parents ~~are~~ are well-informed about the current trends of the job market, so their guidance might help ~~a child~~ children select a promising field that offers copious opportunities to grow ^{both} as a professional and as a person.

Secondly, parents are great as advisors since they ~~obtain~~ are generally more experienced than their children. For example, they ~~might~~ are ~~not~~ knowledgeable when it comes to ~~prioritising~~ sorting out career paths, so with their help children are able to sift through numerous majors way faster, the process becoming more fruitful.

It is crucial to keep in mind that seeking guidance from one's parents might have its drawbacks, too. In fact, some parents might be willing to help their kid with choosing a field of study so much that they ~~child~~ ~~with~~ resort to ~~pressing~~ putting the ~~kid~~ ^{child} under pressure. Clearly, parents ~~may~~ love their ~~ch~~ kids and ~~it~~ firmly believe that ~~what~~ they ~~know~~ "know better" when it comes to selecting a college major, but that's not always the case.

After all, it is always up to children to decide whether they are in need of advice. I believe that seeking guidance from parents is really helpful when choosing a field of study. 11.11

Creative writing - Topic № 2

Nowadays, it is common to have a part-time job while studying at school. It is a really controversial topic for many people, especially ^{for} parents. Some agree that students can benefit a lot from doing part-time jobs, however, I totally disagree with this statement.

I would like to begin by ⁵⁰ saying that high school students may easily get distracted from their studies while having a part-time job. Furthermore, working always requires too much time to sacrifice. ⁸⁰ For instance, teenagers come home late at night and need to do their homework to stick to deadlines. That is just impossible to ¹⁰⁰ do at any age.

Nevertheless, I am convinced that there is one big advantage of working part-time while still studying. Young workers learn a lot from their new experience. They develop their social skills, what's more, they are taught how to work in a team, which will definitely help them in their future career. ¹⁵⁰ However, that does not alter my opinion that having a part-time job while attending classes is not a good idea.

All things considered, I would like to emphasize the importance of being focused and concentrated only on school subjects while being at high school. I think ²⁰⁰ so because the last years of school are significantly ^{valuable} ~~important~~ for young people. ~~That is why I strongly believe that having a part-time job while still studying at school is a total waste of time and energy because in those years some of the most important decisions of their lives are made. That is why I strongly believe that having a part-time job while still studying at school is a total waste of time and energy.~~ ^{251 words} (16)

Task 1. (1-5) Read the text and choose the correct option.

Elizabeth was brooding in her room. She had sought asylum there since spurious gossip about her began circulating at Seagrove Academy last week. Not that Elizabeth had ever been considered a social butterfly. She preferred to live vicariously through the stories of her more brazen friends: late night partying, fraternizing with boys, childish pranks. Still, she had taken to being more by herself than usual since the allegations surfaced.

She was up for consideration for the highly coveted Blauvelt Award, a scholarship recognizing “academic integrity and promise.” A student had given headmaster Billings an anonymous “tip” that Elizabeth had cheated on several tests this year. The accusations were laughable. Elizabeth had long been a stellar student at Seagrove. She lacked a natural intelligence – this was true. However, she compensated for this deficit through diligence and perseverance; she was very thorough in her studies and exhibited an almost relentless determination. Still, the accusations had given the recommendation committee pause. On Friday Elizabeth had been called to Mr. Billings’ grand office, where she was asked copious questions about her recent exams. The experience was quite traumatic.

Seagrove was an elite school. Most of its students came from privileged backgrounds. This was not the case for Elizabeth. Her family had little money. She attended Seagrove on a full scholarship. The Blauvelt Award would help her family pay for college. So, it was with the same diligence which she applied to her studies that Elizabeth planned to unmask her accuser. She opened the school directory on her bed and began combing through the names. Seagrove was such a small and insular community. Twenty-one kids would be in her graduating class. Elizabeth knew it was inevitable that the person spreading rumors about her would come to light. It was just a matter of time.

2. What is clear about the student who accused Elizabeth of cheating?
I - The student is a former friend of Elizabeth.

B. A little girl wins the National Spelling Bee with hard work.

C. A man walks his dog during the rain.

4. Why is Elizabeth so sure that she will learn who has accused her of cheating?

A. Her friends will help her.

☒ B. The community is so small.

C. She thinks the person will come forward.

D. She thinks the person will be the recipient of the Blauvelt Award.

5. The Blauvelt Award is important to Elizabeth because it will

Topic 1.

The question of a college major is essential in our life. Ipso facto it is important to choose the right one. Nevertheless, the question remains whether or not a student ~~she~~ should seek guidance from parents regarding the major of their choice. To be frank, I am not an advocate of the system mentioned above.

Of course, one could argue that a useful advice may be a decisive factor in one's life. So, in order to receive one, a person should ask those, whom they respect. Namely, their parents or other close relatives.

This objection certainly has a point, though not everything is as simple as may seem from the first glance. It is no secret that many, possibly everyone, want to choose a route to success by deciding a college major. Thus, it is up to a student to decide what suits them the most. Hence, there is no need for advisors.

In order to answer ¹⁰⁰ present questions we can look into the past. Our society has evolved from an industrial to the post-industrial way of living, therefore, there is (or will be) a place for every talent in every field imaginable. I believe, it is time to pursue whatever studies one deems ²⁰⁰ necessary.

To sum up, it is important to pinpoint that, although not every advice is inappropriate, students, in my opinion, should be apathetic only to those, which do not correspond with their inner feelings and desires. So I genuinely encourage everyone to be builders of their own destiny.

PARENTS' ROLE IN CHOOSING CAREER.

Many children graduate from school every year and face the problem of choosing a college major. Some people think that parents should guide their children but many can argue with this point of view. They say that it is advisable for children to seek guidance from their parents. This difference in opinions makes deciding on a college major even harder.

Personally, I agree that children must be able to choose their future career themselves, without pressure from parents. Of course, parents wish us all the best but it isn't them who will do this job for the entire life. An opportunity to make decisions could also help a child in his or her future because it is really important to be decisive in the adulthood.

To support my point of view, I would like to give the following example. I have a friend who ~~had~~ graduated from school two years ago and had to decide on a college major. His parents told him that he must go and study for a doctor because this job will give him a lot of money. He listened to their advice, although his dream was to become an actor. After a year of studying he understood that it is truly ~~not~~ not his cup of tea. So, he had to drop out from college and go study for a profession of his dream. Fortunately, this story has a happily-ever-after but he spent a year ~~doing~~ studying with lack of pleasure.

To sum up, parents shouldn't influence their children's college major because it will cost them a lot: starting from time and money, ending with their child's nerves.

I think that students can easily benefit from having part-time jobs while attending classes. There are a lot of reasons and examples, that support my opinion, and I am going to write about the most important ones.

First of all, having a part-time job helps the student to gain valuable experience. This experience will help them ^{Sp} in their future jobs. Having a part-time job gives the student a great opportunity to learn how to work in a team, ^{to} gain confidence in their working skills, and most importantly learn crucial aspects, ~~at~~ that play a big role ^{in the} business ^{Sp} student works at. There is a ~~great~~ ^{wonderful} example that supports my statement. My good friend, who now owns a cafe, used to work as a waiter at a local restaurant when he was ^{exp} learning in high school. He told [✓] me many times, that the experience ^{Sp} he ~~learned~~ ^{gained} while working as a waiter helped him a lot in running his own business.

[✓] ~~Another~~ ^{Second} argument that supports my opinion is ~~just~~ ^{as} important as the first one. Having a part-time job while attending classes helps ¹³⁰ students to attend additional educational courses, that ~~will~~ ^{help}

→ help them later on in their careers. I have an example that ²⁰⁰proves my opinion right.
My classmate ~~works~~ ²⁰⁰part-time at Burger
King. He wants to become a digital artist, and ~~spends~~ ²⁰⁰his salary to buy ^{educational} courses,
~~that~~ ²⁰⁰are focused on learning digital art.
He will soon become skilled enough to start working as a freelance artist. Without this job ²⁰⁰my classmate couldn't attend these educational courses,

In conclusion I would like to say that having a part-time job ^{not only} gives students valuable ^{sp}experience, but also helps them advance in their skills, that are needed for their job. Part-time job is a great start for the student's career.

АПЕЛЛЯЦИЯ

Прошу рассмотреть вопрос об изменении моей оценки по предмету Английский язык с «60/15» балла (-ов) на «67/15» балла (ов) по причине предположения об ошибке в одном задании Reading (пункт 8), и по причине предположения о неправильной проверке в задании grammar (пункт 5). В задании Reading (6-10) надо найти в тексте слова по их лексическому значению. В ключах для пункта 8 написан ответ «assassinations». В тексте варианта этого слова нет, в нём два раза повторяется слово «assassinations». «Assassinations» является самым подходящим для ответа в пункте 8, его я записал в ответ, считая это ок верный.
см. следующую стр. ~~пункта~~

Вопрос:

В задании дана таблица пунктов 5 я написал в ответ «hardly noticed any». Требуется в задании имеет виду, что участники почти не заметили изменения, если они не были во время важных ист. событий. Мой ответ имеет такой же смысл как и искроное предложение в задании. «Hardly noticed any» имеет значение «почти не заметили какого-либо изменения» (то есть они почти не заметили все изменения в целом, поэтому я написал, any, так как модве изменения они не заметили). В задании можно указать, что я никого ни в чём не обвиняю и что я не считал что мои ответы исключительно правдивые, я лишь предполагал.

Ответ: Всё правильно, заранее спасибо! Всего доброго!

Nowadays a lot of high school students tend to have a part-time job. No doubt, they can benefit from working on holidays and weekends. However, ~~is~~ having a part-time job while attending classes has more disadvantages then advantages. ~~lex~~

I understand why students want to work. It provides more pocket money ^{to} spend on shopping and entertainment. Teenagers enjoy going to the ~~theatre~~ cinema or hanging out with their friends, ~~but~~ but I guess they will not have time for that if they work.

First and foremost, highschoolers need to prepare for their final exams to enter the university. Even part-time jobs take ^{too} a lot of ~~time~~ valuable time, so they have to choose between the opportunity to enter their dream university and make an excellent career and earning extra money.

Secondly, having a job means that students ~~have~~ lack freetime. The money ^{so} they have earned can not really be spend ^{on} on entertainment. They do not even have time to relax after studying. This can lead to various problems, especially mental breakdown and depression, which may affect teenagers' future. They are still children and they need time for hobbies and friends.

To summarize, young people face the choice between studying, working and having freetime and they can choose only two options. ~~Every way~~ They need to ~~refuse~~ ^{lack} something and part-time job seems the most harmless ~~choice~~ option to refuse. ~~People's~~ Teenagers future depend ^{on} on how hard they studied at school and how healthy they are. ~~But~~ You can not have everything at the same time, so choose the best way to ~~guarantee~~ make your dream future come true.
